Vinson: raise flood awareness

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's John Vinson doesn't have any big beefs with West Sacramento's current city council. But if he wins a seat in November, he helps to put some more city focus on issues such as disaster preparedness and controlling the quality and pace of growth.

"One of my main concerns is the realization that we live around a very week levee system," Vinson told the News-Ledger this week. "It's not like it used to be years ago. I'd put a lot of energy into trying to raise disaster awareness. I've learned by knocking on doors (during his campaign) that most people don't have any idea about this. We need to educate people on what will happen if the levee breaks."

Vinson wants everyone to realize "that in the event of a flood, we all have to be prepared to be self-sufficient for the first 72 hours."

And he wants to know how kids in local schools will get to safety – he himself has two grown children, and two more who are freshmen at River City High.

"If I am in Sacramento and I get word on the radio that a levee has broken, I would like to know how my kids would get out (from River City) and where they're going to be taken. Disaster planning is important, but it needs to be explained so everyone knows."

Vinson, 52, is a maintenance specialist at the Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency, and a partner in a contracting firm. He ran for city council unsuccessfully in 2002, but is back for a second try as two seats open up on the November 7 ballot. Like his rivals for the two seats, he is a resident of Southport, the city's southern half.

Does Vinson believe the City of West Sacramento is in good financial condition?

"I think we're in good financial shape," he answered, "but I don't know if things are going to cool off with the real estate market."

He has some issues with how the city is experiencing growth.

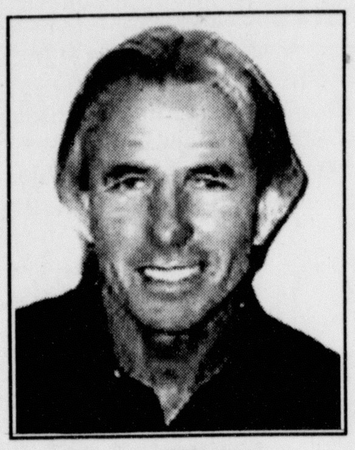

"One of the things I see happening here and across the country is that we grow faster than our infrastructure (roads, sewer and water lines, etc.). I'd like to slow it down, not stop it, and I'd like to be more particular about the projects we get, and allow the infrastructure to catch up. We may soon have the opposite problem with the slow-down (in real estate)."

Vinson feels the city has not always been choosy about what goes into Southport.

"They have so much wide-open land, they just start building, and I don't think they're particular about the kind of projects they put in," he commented. "And I don't see us having enough roads and arteries to allow people to get out of Southport (if they need to)."

Vinson pledged to be "a little more careful and a little more concerned about the type of projects going in."

"A little more open space would be nice – that's what people want."

JOHN VINSON
Candidate for City Council

And he mentioned the proposed "Yarbrough" subdivision as an example of a "good" project:

"I think that's a good idea – we need the golf course since we lost ours, and they also intend to put in a lake. I can get behind that."

Vinson said that "they did a nice job" on the new "Rivers" subdivision in the city's north.

"But I don't want to see the old people have to move away because of it. About the first 10 years I lived in West Sacramento, I lived in Broderick. I would hate to see the old neighborhoods squeezed out. I don't really see the council concerned a lot about the 'old.' There are some folks who don't have a lot of money and their homes are wearing down. We need to have some programs to help them so they can remain."

Regarding the changes at the local Port of Sacramento, Vinson said he is "okay with the idea of Oakland running the port" and he has been a longtime booster of the port because of its "great jobs, with benefits, that people can live on."

What – if anything – should the city council be doing about the school district?

"That's something I would have to look at if I get elected to council," Vinson replied. "The school board is a separate board elected to run the district, and the council is elected to run the city. I think it is past due to get the new high school built, and as a council person I think that just about all I could do is promote getting the school built. The number-one problem with our schools is we are overcrowded."

Vinson said he believes the current city council is starting to "pay more attention to the quality of development coming into the city," and he applauds them for moving ahead with a new fire station and the replacement of an old one. He believes the current leaders are fiscally responsible as well.

But he wants more police and firefighters.

"I don't see our fire and police force growing to keep up," he commented. "(Police and firefighters) are doing the best they can, but we need more. Response times have dropped considerably, and we need to keep (police and fire) beefed up."

Vinson said he is comfortable with the city's current

Raley Field in West Sacramento turned into a "house of ribs" Sept. 22-24 for the fourth annual "Rhythm and Ribs" cook-off. Entered in the competition as "River City Ribbers," West Sacramento Elks Lodge #2529 won the "Mayor's Bone Appétit" award and top honors for "best sauce." Pictured, Mayor Christopher Cabaldon, center, congratulates team members James Korteum, left, and Gary Wiese. The other major award winner was "J. R. History buffs meet

Longtime West Sacramento resident Verna Ellis recently got herself a photographed hug from popular PBS personality Huell Howser, whose television program, "California's Gold," is well known to many residents of West Sacramento.

Howser was at a special event (the unveiling of the "long lost golden spike") at the California State Railroad Museum in Old Sacramento earlier this month when the photo was taken.

"Huell is even nicer in person than he is on the television screen," said Verna, a history buff who never misses an episode of California's Gold.

Stegman: fight truancy, avoid 'micromanaging'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Matthew Stegman and his family are relative newcomers to West Sacramento. But they're active in the schools and the community, and Stegman believes he's ready to serve as a member of the local school board. He's running for election for one of two empty board seats this November.

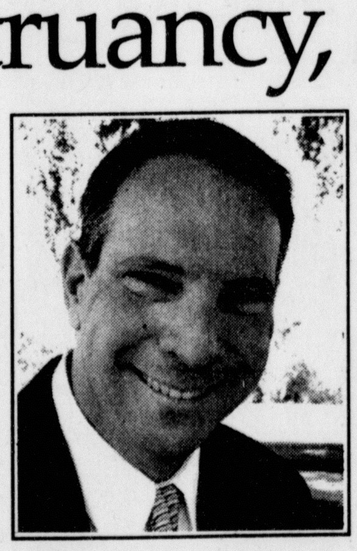

"I have three young kids in the local schools, and we care deeply about public education," said Stegman, 44. "We want to make a positive change in the district. We have concerns. I have a business administration degree and a law degree, and I feel I can help make a difference."

Stegman, educated in the L.A. area, served as a deputy district attorney in Redding before going to work as an assistant U.S. Attorney prosecuting "white collar" crimes in Sacramento. When he took his present job, he looked at moving to West Sacramento.

"We were looking at a house in Southport, and we were good to go," he recalls. "But we were told that since we were a family that believed in education, we should move to 'somewhere they care about education', like Davis."

The family ended up in Rocklin, and Stegman was unhappy about the long commute to work. Two years ago, the family committed to buy a house in "The Rivers," the new subdivision along West Sacramento's northern riverfront, and a year ago they moved in.

"West Sacramento is a great place to live and it's just across the bridge from where I work," he said, adding that his three kids are now in kindergarten, second and third grades in Bryte Elementary School.

MATTHEW STEGMAN

Candidate for WUSD Board of Trustees

"We love Bryte – it's a great school."

Matt and his wife, Erika, have volunteered at the school, and she played a role in the district's parent task force studying and recommending that Washington Unified proceed with creating some "K-8" campuses, where seventh and eighth grades may be added to some local elementary school campuses.

"My wife volunteers at Bryte two or three days per week," Matt Stegman commented. "We were both on the playground committee at Bryte last year, and got a new playground. I'm also a soccer coach for the West Sacramento Soccer Club, and assistant club manager (for the league)." The Stegmans are also a "Cub Scout" family.

The pair helped start a "parent teacher club" now forming at Bryte Elementary, and Erika is one of the club's four officers.

Does Matt Stegman believe that Washington Unified School District is in good financial shape?

"Our school district requested to be audited by (an outside team) that found there were a lot of things that need to be done differently, and we need to implement those changes," he commented. "And there's certainly a concern about how we're going to fund new facilities. It will depend on community support for passing a bond down the road. The superintendent has presented a plan to the board on how to pay for the new high school."

That facilities plan for building new campuses, he noted, contains a recommendation for another bond measure.

Stegman said the new high school campus – delayed by money issues – is "vitally important." And he worried that the new facilities plan may foist larger elementary campuses upon the community.

"I have a concern about elementary schools having a thousand kids – which is twice as big as West Sacramento is used to. I think it's important we keep them smaller."

Stegman said that the current school board is "doing a good job considering the turmoil in the district and the changes in the administration, but what we need to do is take a step back and look at the big picture, figure out where we want to be in five years or ten years down the road, give the superintendent that vision and ask him get us there. We have to avoid micromanaging him."

That comment also sheds light on what Stegman feels a board member is supposed to do:

"The prime function of a board member is to give the superintendent and public a vision of where we want to go down the road. . . and also to approve a yearly budget, to represent the community, to represent the district to the community, and to be accountable for the job the district is doing."

What would he do differently from the current board?

"Generally, we need to step back and stop dealing with the small issues, like what color the website is," he answered, with a warning that the board needs to avoid "micromanaging" its staff.

How important are the student standardized test scores?

"Scores are important," he answered. "They're a way for us to judge how well schools are teaching the children. It's also what a lot of parents look at when they are thinking of moving here."

"One thing we can do is (attack) truancy," he continued. "We have a terrible truancy problem and my understanding is (the district) loses about $4 million per year just over truants. And we have a dropout rate that's about 40 percent – that means 40 percent of the kids are just stopping going to school, and never get a degree."

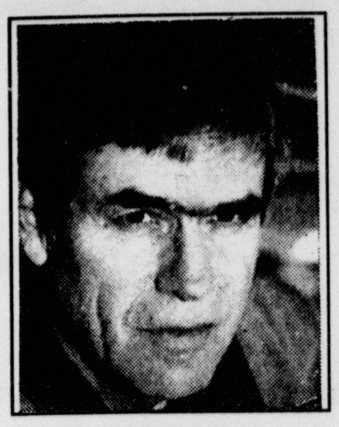

More needs to be done to keep those kids in school, Stegman said.

Does he still support creating "K-8" elementary schools, as an alternative to attendance at Golden State Middle School after sixth grade?

"We're supportive of choice," Stegman answered. There are parents that are excited about middle school, and the middle school has a lot to offer. There are others who want to keep their kids in elementary school, and have teachers they know and a principal they know."

The district will have two of its five "trustee" seats on the ballot on November 7, and neither incumbent will be running again. Stegman is one of five challengers running for the seats.

The remote control takes a direct hit

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

As I wrote in a column more than a year ago, I am now a grandfather for the very first time. His name is Riley and his parents, like so many other young couples nowadays, both have to work full-time jobs to make ends meet. I don't remember exactly when it was still possible for just one parent to work and the other to stay home with the children, but that day is now tragically long gone. Anyway, in an effort to keep Riley out of daycare for as long as possible, a complicated schedule of babysitting was set up shortly after he was born involving his grandparents and close family friends who all agreed to watch him for at least one day a week.

As the months have gone by, for one reason or another, all of Riley's caregivers have had to adjust the days they had him from time to time, and since I seem to be the one person with the most flexible work schedule, I now usually end up babysitting Riley a couple of days a week. Which brings me to my little story.

This past Friday, in an effort to have Riley spend less time watching Seasame Street and televised cartoons, and more time out of his play pen interacting with his environment (and me), I decided to more or less turn him loose both inside (and outside) the house, with the following results:

After a leisurely early morning ride around the neighborhood in his stroller, I unbuckled Riley and encouraged him to go off and explore my front yard, which he of course eagerly did. His first stop was a big pile of decorative rocks near my front door, most of them about the size of a golf ball. He immediately plopped down, picked up a rock in each hand, and tossed them both out onto my driveway. I quickly went off to fetch them and on the return trip was welcomed by another rock flying past my ear. And as all parents/grandparents will quickly recognize, Riley had started his own little game, which in this case consisted of him tossing rocks all over the place and me chasing after them. Then, on the 25th or so trip back to the rock pile, I noticed that Riley's mouth looked a lot like a chipmunk who was in the process of squirrelling away nuts for the winter. And sure enough, Riley had put one of the rocks in his mouth (thankfully too big to swallow), and after I had successfully retrieved it and thanked God for dodging that bullet, back into the house we went.

Then came nap time. I rocked Riley to sleep as usual, placed him safely in his bedroom play pen (which is a good four feet deep and always serves as his bed when he is over at the house), covered him up, and went out into the front yard to rake up a ton of leaves that a very windy day had deposited on my lawn and driveway, knowing that Riley would probably sleep for at least an hour. But only twenty or so minutes later, I happened to look over at the front porch and standing behind the screen door was Riley, very much awake and out of his play pen.

Now how could that possibly be, I quickly asked myself. And then I rushed into the house to make sure he hadn't broken his neck or any other bones doing his latest Houdini act. Satisfied that the big fall he must have taken while going up and over his play pen wall hadn't hurt him, I thanked God once again for dodging yet another bullet -- and went in search of the Seasame Street CD.

Later that afternoon, with only an hour or so to go before my less than stellar babysitting shift was to end, I once again gave Riley the freedom to go wherever he wanted, and this time he decided to follow me into the bathroom. I had been warned a few days earlier that for reasons unknown to his parents, Riley apparently now likes to follow his father into the bathroom and watch him pee.

"Will that be a problem for you?" I remember his father asking me, "because it's really no big deal to me. I mean, I just figure he's getting a little head start on his potty training."

"Oh, no," I had assured him, "it won't be a problem. My dog used to follow me into the bathroom all the time so I'm kinda used to it."

So, when Riley followed me into the bathroom, I just pretended I was alone as normal and went about my business pretty much as I always do when nature calls. And everything was going just fine until I happened to notice that Riley had apparently picked up the TV clicker on his way to the bathroom. Unfortunately, I didn't completely spot the TV clicker until Riley had reached out and placed it right in the middle of (how does one say this?) -- the pee stream.

Anyway, the fact that Riley and I had already survived a rock-swallowing scare and a potential broken neck, having a TV clicker that needed a thorough cleaning didn't seem to be such a big deal. Plus I immediately knew that our day together would probably end up making a pretty good column, and not just because of all the interesting things Riley had given me to write about, but also because my wife (who is the cleanest person I know and who religiously reads the News-Ledger from front to back each week) will shortly be discovering for the first time that the TV clicker she has been using all week to watch her home improvement and cooking shows has been peed on.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

The San Francisco Giants are done and Oakland A's are getting ready to have some fun. Even though the A's (as of Monday) haven't officially clinched their division the magic -number is two.

The G-Men were eliminated from playoff contention with their fifth consecutive loss and suffered 10 losses of their last 12 ballgames. Giant's organization will spend the post season contemplating the signing of Mr. Bonds and how to revamp the oldest roster in major league baseball.

The only good news for Giants fans next season is that the G-Men will host the 2007 All-Star game and those darn Yankees will visit AT&T Park (June 22-24) for a interleague series.

The A's (90-65) whose magic number still remains at two will be on the road in Seattle until Thursday when they head down south to Disneyland for a four game series against the Angels. Oakland needs to win one game in Anaheim to clinch their first division championship since 2003.

The Yankees and Tigers have already clinched their divisions and the Twins have qualified by winning the wild card spot.

NFL Week Four

I can't believe we are all ready into the fourth week of the NFL season. The Raiders enjoyed their bye week and will return to action on Sunday, Oct. 1st (1 p.m.) as a two point home under dog against the Cleveland Browns. Look for Walters to have a big game in first professional start at quarterback!

In the NFC the 49ers (1-2) fell apart again in front of the goal line with another fumble by Frank Gore. The Niners were mugged by Philly 38-24 and also lost their first round pick tight end Vernon Davis with a broken leg.

The good news for the 49ers was that Alex Smith had another good day at quarterback passing for 293 yards and he hasn't even thrown an interception this season. Oh well, I probably jinx him for his upcoming game on Sunday (10 a.m.) in Kansas City.

Aztecs Picks

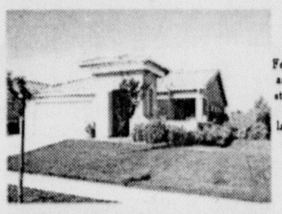

Aztec (6-6) had a mediocre week but only because the dog is not human. The Dawg failed to realize that the Monday night game was huge for the City of New Orleans but more importantly it was the Saints home opener in the newly rebuilt Superdome.

The Saints mugged the Falcons 23-3 and it wasn't even close and he also lost the Arizona game but the Dawg won with Seattle and clawed his way to his third consecutive college lick of the week. Nebraska beat up Troy 56-0 putting Aztec at 3-0 on his college picks – all shut-outs.

This week the Dawg "College Lick of the Week" is Miami-Fla. (-15) over the visiting Houston Cougars. In the NFL Aztec has his paws on the Bengals (-6) over the Pats and Da Raiders (+2) at home against the Browns. Monday night the Eagles (-10) should run through the Packers.

Enjoy your day - see ya next week!

campaign laws, including a restriction on receiving more than $250 in campaign contributions from any single person. But he would rather see "district" elections for the council, instead of the current "at large" system in which the entire city together chooses the whole council.

"Everybody now running, or most of them, lives in Southport," he commented. "Look at Bryte and Broderick – each of them could be a separate district. If we start district elections, each area could have a representative on the city council. I really see that as a need."

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento river registered 4 feet 2 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. The showers of the past week have added a good deal to the upriver section in the way of rain and fortunately no damage has been done to any of the crops along the stream as far north as Colusa.

Beans and rice are in the warehouses, and although prices are not the best in the history of the state, the magnificent crops reaped by the farmers promise them splendid returns. Let the rain come now as much as it wants to and nobody who has been diligent during the summer and fall need fear any damage.

Mrs. Annis Thomas has been confined to her bed for the past week with a severe cold. Yesterday her condition was greatly relieved, but she is still unable to attend to her household duties.

Sheriff Monroe was a visitor in Washington yesterday. Somehow or other the residents of this locality like to see the sheriff around, not because he is the buga boo to be feared by law breakers, but because he is a genial, sociable, good fellow, ready to make himself at home with the residents of this district and for that they like him even though sometimes he is forced to do his duty.

The Washington Star club won a basketball game last Wednesday night from the boys of the Fremont Park church at the Y. M. C. A. in Sacramento. The game was an impromptu one, not being on the schedule, but fortunately a large attendance of the boys of the club were on hand to hold up their end. Last Saturday night the score made by the Washington Star club against the same team resulted in 21 to 7, in favor of the home team.

Mrs J. McNevin is able to be around again after a week's sickness during which she was confined to her home.

The trial of Lee Wee on a charge of gambling will take place on November 13 before Judge Barry. He was arrested last Wednesday night by Constable Buckingham in the Washington hotel and the only evidence taken up against him was a sum of money amounting to $17.05. Other than this there was no evidence found by Constable Buckingham and it seems strange than even a Chinaman can be arrested for having that particular amount of money in his possession. Whether he was gambling or simply passing time in the Washington hotel with $17.05 in his possession be a crime or not remains to be seen, but it is to be feared that Judge Barry will fail to see any crime in this actual possession of funds.

Dago Frank, as he is familiarly known, his real name being Frank Vergotina, was around Washington yesterday renewing old friendships. He had made a stake in the bean harvest this year and on occassions of that kind he usually celebrates. His celebration this year was greatly curtailed for in the town he could not even secure a glass of Christian Science beer. He knew that Sheriff Monroe had been in Washington, and so did all the rest of the boys, with the result that Dago Frank sobered up very quickly. Unfortunately he crossed the bridge to pay a visit to Mayor Elkus and returned later on greatly influence by the beneficence and kindly nature of the mayor of Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Daniels of Medford, Ore., spent Wednesday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Frank De Riso, Jr. They were en route to Redlands, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Arey of Oakland has been spending the past few days as house guests at the home of Mrs. Frank De Riso, Sr.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Community church will hold its annual bazaar at the school house on Dec. 8.

At a special meeting of the board of school trustees held Wednesday morning at the school house, it was decided to declare Armistice day a holiday.

Mrs. James Whitting is recovering from an operation she recently underwent at the Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento.

Mrs. Jeannette Saunders, who is confined in the Sisters' Hospital as the result of an operation she recently underwent, is reported to be rapidly improving and is expected home in a few days.

Mrs. Belle Parkinson of North Sacramento spent Saturday in Washington as the guest of friends.

Mrs Ofa Conrad of St. Helena was entertained at the home of Mrs. A. M. Cameron last week. Other guests at the Cameron home include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jasper of Wheatland. Mrs. Conrad accompanied the Jaspers on the return trip.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sadler spent the week end in Woodland as the guest of friends.

Mrs. Charles Minear, who was formerly Miss Olean Brietzke of Washington, now a resident of Sacramento, is reported to be ill at her home.

Mrs. Elva Wiard, formerly Miss Elva Lewis, is recovering from her recent operation, which she underwent at the White Hospital.

A. A. Powers, probation officer of Woodland, who was in Washington yesterday on official business, reported to Constable H. B. Buckingham that the side curtains of his automobile were stolen while his car was parked near the levee.

Johnnie Borzone was arrested in Sacramento last Sunday night for speeding. Johnnie was feeling extra good after a big time at the Big Time Gun club and, feeling his oats, he stepped too hard on the gas. The result was that it cost him $10, which he did not at all regret.

A Woodland preacher was highly complimented a few days ago when the children said about him:

"Gee, he's a regular fellow. Too bad he's a preacher."

THREATS AGAINST CHINESE HAVE BEEN MADE THAT WOULD INDICATE NEW BUILDING WILL HAVE INTERFERENCE

The Washington hotel was raided last Wednesday night by Sheriff Monroe and no arrests were made, although the raid indicated that it is not the intention of the authorities to permit the Chinamen to continue in peaceful possession of the premises.

Last night the writer visited the Washington hotel and found everything about as orderly as any person could find them in any section of a Chinese quarter. There was rattling of dominoes. There was loud talking. There was exclamation following exclamation, and on investigation it was found that the Chinese were simply indulging in their regular pastimes.

Some people might be inclined to call this gambling, but there was no evidence of money being passed on the game.

So long as a percentage is not taken down by the dealers, or so long as a concerted effort is not made to subvert the law against gambling, there can be no fault to find with Chinamen who play dominoes or dice or other games of which the white men know little.

The raid made by Sheriff Monroe was evidently a preliminary one to others that may follow, and it is possible that the Washington hotel may become a burden on the hands of its owner. Fit and ready to pay taxes to the county treasurer, but of little value to the property owner.

Mrs. Mary Hansen is the owner of this property. To her son, Ed, I. Hansen, this property has been leased for several years past, and now he subleases it to the Chinese for their own particular purposes.

Whether crime is being committed in the place or not is to be seen, or whether the laws of the state are being broken is a question to be determined by the courts.

On the visit of last night by the writer there were lookouts at each door of the Washington hotel. That is not unusual, for Chinese have been assailed on so many occasions it seems necessary for them to have these lookouts.

Less than a month ago the properties owned by Hauser, on Anne street, were battered with rocks and other missles and several plate glass windows were broken at a great loss. Chinese resent these intrusions and keep their lookouts posted in order to prevent damage. Possibly that is the reason that the lookouts were posted at the Washington hotel yesterday.

The building constructed by the Chinese at the intersection of Second street and the entrance to the M street bridge at a cost of $15,000, is nearing completion. In a few days it will be ready for occupancy and several families of Sacramento Chinese expect to move into it. If the building is assailed, as have other buildings been assailed in Washington, there is liable to be trouble. The property was leased from Thomas O'Connor and the building was constructed at the expense of the Chinamen. It has been so constructed as not to be a nuisance to any person in the immediate neighborhood, but if interference prevents the Chinamen from continuing in peaceful and lawful possession, trouble is liable to ensue.

In the meantime, all the places rented by Chinese on Anne street and Second street are closed and no attempt has been made to open them for several days, even several weeks, although rents are regularly paid by the Chinamen on the properties.

FIREMEN WILL GIVE ANOTHER DANCE ON SATURDAY, NOV. 24

Following the success of the last dance given by the volunteer firemen of Washington a good deal of encouragement was advanced to the boys for any of their future efforts along that line.

As a consequence the volunteer fire department has decided that another dance will be given on Saturday evening, November 24th, to help the department in the objects that it has in view for the protection of the homes of the town.

The firemen have no other means of revenue except through rentals coming through the town hall and those are very light.

Residents of the community feel kindly to the firemen in their efforts to improve the firefighting apparatus that is now on hand, but provisions must also be made for replacing that apparatus if accidents should happen or if the goods should wear out.

The firemen have been active in boosting all community affairs and give liberally to anything of a community nature that merits support.

HOFFMAN-GLIDE SUIT

Woodland, Nov. 6.—By consent the demurrer to the suit of Ancil Hoffman against Henry Glide was overruled by Judge Mm. A. Anderson yesterday.

YOLO SUPERVISORS WILL SPEND $60,000 ON DAVIS STREETS

Woodland, Nov. 7.—Approximately $60,000 will be expended in the next few months in improving the streets in Davis, according to County Surveyor Asa G. Proctor. The board of supervisors Monday let a contract to A. Teichert & Sons of Sacramento to construct certain highway being jointly constructed by the city of Davis and the county of Yolo. The county stands the cost of a strip 16 feet wide through certain streets, the city standing the cost of completing the strip on either side of the center pavement. There were two bidders for the work.

Work will begin immediately on the gutters and curbing, according to Proctor. The work will be completed in the early spring.

WIDOW OF SNIDER IN SUPERIOR COURT

Woodland, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Cora A. Snider appeared in the Yolo Superior Court this morning to terminate an interest in the homestead of her late husband, Thomas C. Snider. The latter died last April 15. He was a Yolo county supervisor for many years.

WEST SACRAMENTO ROAD FINISHED TODAY BY CONTRACTORS

The last and remaining few feet of the county highway extending between the soil laboratory and the church in West Sacramento was finished today by the contractors, Teichert & Son of Sacramento.

This ends a question that has been before the people for several years, especially several winters that racked the souls of landowners in the West Sacramento district.

Nothing now remains except a strip about fifty feet extending over the bridgeway that crosses the main central canal in the vicinity of the soil laboratory.

Be it said that the road just finished is a credit not only to the contractors who did the work but to the supervisors and the county surveyor who specified the construction and who designed the intricate system of roadway which has seldom or never harassed the souls of road builders.

The road was built several years ago by the promoters of the West Sacramento district, but unfortunately very little attention was given to it after its construction. As a consequence it deteriorated rapidly, especially during the period when heavy hauling conveyed the products of the district to the market.

Concrete that was estimated to last for several years broke through a soft foundation and it was the chuckholes thus produced that worried the very souls of the land owners of the vicinity.

About six months ago a twenty-ton roller, armored with six-inch spikes, failed to break the unbroken concrete so that it remained for the supervisors and the county surveyor to design a new and unique method of road building along this stretch of territory.

The question was solved by building a shoulder at either side of the old concrete road. This shoulder is a foot in width, a foot in depth and a foot in thickness. This shoulder was used by the contractors to confine the Willite material that was subsequently laid on the top of the old concrete, leaving the base of the roadway entirely perfect as it stood, with the exception that the chuckholes that had been formed were filled first with the new material and subsequently levelled off to make a complete pavement that should last for several years to come.

The finishing of this road is a blessing that the farmers of the district will appreciate greatly because during many past winters they have been greatly handicapped in getting in and out of their homes. So bad was the roadway at times, that even children on their way to school were forced to turn back.

The roadway south of the church and extending to Riverview is now in the course of construction and when completed the line will make a complete road through West Sacramento as far as the river levee at Riverview.

Unfortunately the contractors on the southern portion of the road are working slowly, laying the first "course" of macadam, and if heavy winter rains should set in they would be stopped, as they were last winter, to leave farmers in the southern portion of the West Sacramento district, the Lisbon district and the Holland district at great disadvantage during the winter.

DEATH OF MRS, RODRIGUEZ FOLLOWED SERIOUS OPERATON

Last Saturday the death of Mrs. Thomas Rodriguez occured at the White Hospital in Sacramento following an operation that had been performed on her for appendicitis and the removal of a tumor about ten days previously.

Apparently Mrs. Rodriguez was recovering rapidly from the operation when suddenly a reaction set in, ending in her death in a few hours.

Last Saturday she passed away in the arms of her husband and two children after suffering severely for a few hours.

She was a young woman 35 years of age, a native of Spain and a resident of Washington during the past seven years. Her husband is a highly respected man, working earnestly for the support of his family in the rolling mills of the Southern Pacific Company, and they lived happily in their little home on Third street, between Anne and Harriet streets.

Besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her two children, Joseph and Alice, six and five years old.

Last Monday her funeral took place from her home, thence to the Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament, where a requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Marcucci for the repose of her soul. Interment was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

A great crowd of neighbors and friends accompanied her to her last resting place, bearing testimony of her work as a mother, a neighbor and a lady of refinement and gentility.

CARD OF THANKS

To the many relatives, friends and neighbors who tendered us their assistance in our late bereavement and who so kindly offered us their sympathy in our great distress in the death of a fond wife and mother, we offer our sincere thanks and hope that they may never be similarly afflicted.

OPINION

FROM THE MAILBAG:

Letters to the Editor —

Read a banned book

Kudos to Cheryl F. Chapel's guest commentary (News-Ledger, Sept. 20)and the American Library Association's sponsorship of "Read a Banned Book." Not only was the title catchy, but more importantly it stated a critical message about the danger of censorship. Today many religious and political leaders want to tell us how to think. In their minds, any opposing viewpoint is a threat or even unpatriotic.

Censorship limits our ability to make sound decisions and blocks any meaningful dialogue of complex issues. This type of control helps no one and affects who we elect which in turn affects our world. I am inspired now to read more of those books listed in the commentary and encourage others to do the same.

Happy birthday!

Longtime West Sacramentan Esther Stinchfield, who now lives with her family up in the state of Washington, will be turning 96 on October 4th, and since she still has the News-Ledger mailed to her weekly, her many friends from her many years in West Sacramento would like to take this opportunity to say happy birthday! We miss you!

In support of K-8 schools

A recent story about the school board race indicated that some people think I support K-8 schools because it would benefit my children.

I started advocating for K-8 schools in 1998 when my children were in Kindergarten and preschool. I advocated for the next two years while not on the board, then I advocated for the next four years while on the board, all to no avail. There was always three or four votes against K-8 schools by the other board members. Now with my children in the 8th and 9th grade I am still advocating for K-8 schools.

Some reasons for my continued support of K-8:

Currently we fit all our 7th and 8th graders into Golden State Middle School. One size fits all doesn't work. By having one or more K-8 schools in the WUSD we give parents and children a choice. Another reason is every year we lose a number of 5th and 6th graders to outside districts such as Bates Elementary (K-8), Our Lady of Grace (K-8), and others. A third reason for my support is that as a teacher I saw many children that were not ready for middle school. They were not ready due to emotional immaturity, small physical size, or not mentally ready. No criticism but just a reality that not everyone grows up at the same rate.

The only things that have changed are all the no votes will be off the school board by December and over 8 years have passed since I started championing K-8 schools.

If there was a concern that my children and their friends would benefit from K-8 schools, don't worry, they are all beyond that age.

Bus service thoughts

Ah, the mixed emotions regarding our new West Sacramento/YoloBus service. As noted before, it is less convenient for those -- like myself -- in the south part of old West Sacramento but I'm sure as we find time to visit our Southport neighbors and merchants we'll appreciate the new routings much more.

And while more bus benches and shelters are in the works, try these for temporary fixes: Simple luggage cart with strap/belt; 5-gallon plastic paint bucket to sit on; Tie-down cushion; Clip-on red flasher light for night safety use; An umbrella, to protect from heat and rain; and The newly-printed Regional Transit Bus Book, which has over 100 updated schedules in it.

Finally, enlarged weather-proofed multi-shelters would be helpful and should appear at our major multi-bus stops.

"The Illusionist"

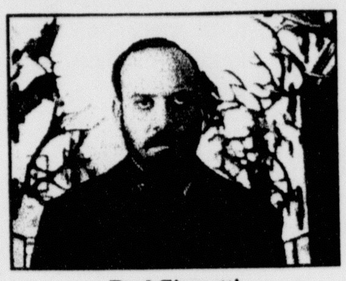

Running time: 109 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

"The Illusionist" is a leisurely paced, period piece set in 1900 Vienna. It is a story of forbidden love, class struggle and the power of illusions. The film stars Edward Norton as the illusionist, Eisenheim. Born the poor son of a cabinetmaker, in his childhood he meets an upper-class girl named Sophie, and they have a brief, innocent love affair. But, because of their class differences, she is taken away and forbidden to ever see the boy again.

Flash-forward 15 years. Eisenheim is the toast of Vienna. He is the country's greatest illusionist, selling out every performance. Many of Eisenheim's fans believe the conjurer possesses occult powers. Of course, success comes at a price. Although the crowds love Eisenheim, Crown Prince Leopold (Rufus Sewell) does not. Leopold is an arrogant, abusive know-it-all who cannot bear not being able to deduce how Eisenheim pulls off such amazing illusions. Leopold enlists the aid of Inspector Uhl (Paul Giamatti in a brilliant and Oscar-worthy performance) to investigate the magician in order to prove him a fraud.

Eisenheim's life becomes even more complicated when he discovers that his childhood love Sophie (Jessica Biel) is a duchess and engaged to marry Leopold. The two begin a clandestine affair that is discovered by Inspector Uhl and reported to the prince.

"The Illusionist" is a well-written, directed and photographed film. The performances by Norton and Giamatti are a joy to watch. The only problems with this film are the computer-generated effects used in some of the magic scenes. They stick out like a sore thumb and draw you out of the movie. The second weakness is Jessica Biel's performance. Her accent drifts between American, stock British and vaguely German. She simply doesn't sound or look the part of a Viennese duchess.

Despite these weaknesses, "The Illusionist" is well worth your time and the price of admission.

Service and Style: How the American Department Store Fashioned the Middle Class
by Jan Whitaker
(St. Martin's Press, $35)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Department stores were once the soul of this country's downtown business districts. Throughout the first six decades of the past century, from stylish buildings, they sold everything from furniture to food. Loyalty was built by providing attractive goods at reasonable prices and servicing the needs of customers.

As author Jan Whitaker points out, the history of the department stores is as fascinating as their names and as diverse as their merchandise. Whitaker, a freelance editor, has written a remarkable book that examines in detail the American downtown department store and how it helped shape the culture of our country. She documents how the department store set the standard for "the good life" for a broad majority of Americans well into the 20th century.

The stores were local institutions where shoppers could attend a fashion show, see an art exhibit, learn golf or bridge, pay electric bills, plan vacations and even learn to cook. All of this could be done while children romped in the store's nursery under the watchful eye of a uniformed housemaid.

Most of these wonderful old stores are gone, but for many Americans the memory lingers on. Filled with old illustrations and bits of trivia, this highly readable book reminds us that department stores were more than just outlets for goods. From Detroit to San Diego, from Seattle to Miami, department stores symbolized a city's wealth, spirit and even its progressiveness.

As this book illustrates, we have lost a great deal with the passing of these epicenters of commerce. Put another way, a big-box store will never be able to compete with a Daniels & Fisher, Bon Marche, Maison Blanche or Marshall Fields.

Q: I am so glad that "Prison Break" is back for its second season. I am also happy that the show has been featured in so many magazines, newspapers and Web sites. However, most of the articles seem to focus on Wentworth Miller ("Michael Scofield"). Could you please tell me a little about my favorite inmate, Dominic Purcell ("Lincoln Burrows")? — A Reader, via e-mail

Dominic Purcell

A: The ruggedly handsome Purcell, 36, was born in London and raised in Australia. He uses an American accent for his role on "Break" and says that he is beginning to lose his Australian accent (much to his Australian-born wife's chagrin!). Purcell and wife Rebecca have four children: Joe, Audrey and twins Lily and Augustus. If his face looks familiar, it might be because he played the title role in 2002's "John Doe," although he did have a bit more hair at the time. In the it's-a-small-world category, Purcell was classmates with Hugh Jackman at the Western Australia Academy of Performing Arts.

Q: Do either David James Elliott or Catherine Bell (of "JAG" fame) have plans for new programs? — Cathy S., Greenville, S.C.

A: Elliott's pilot "Sixty Minute Man" — a drama about a man who thinks he might be part of a government conspiracy when he realizes that his memory is erased for one hour each day — was not picked up by ABC for the fall. But never fear: Elliott has returned to CBS, joining the cast of the drama "Close to Home." Catherine Bell is currently starring in CBS' "Company Town," with Sherry Stringfield ("ER") and Gary Cole ("Talladega Nights").

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS
by Steven Austin

Ryan Newman

NASCAR star and driver of the No. 12 Alltel Dodge, Ryan Newman burns up the backyard grill as well as the track. A member of the Penske Racing Team, Newman has become a fan favorite with his aggressive style and upbeat approach to motorsports. Newman is an Indiana native and has a degree in vehicle structure engineering from Purdue University. When Newman's not on the track racing you can usually find him fishing at the pond on his land in North Carolina with his wife, Krissie.

To keep up with all the latest Alltel Racing News, fans can receive racing alerts on their wireless phones by logging on to www.alltelracing.com. Also, Matt Borland, crew chief of the No. 12, is providing behind-the-scenes stories to race fans with his weekly Podcast. It can be viewed at www.alltelracingpodcast.com. For more information, go to www.nascar.com or www.penskeracing.com.

Of your NASCAR Nextel Cup counterparts, who has an offbeat or unusual eating regimen or habit?

"On the No. 2 hauler, they have tuna fish salad every week, and Cindy Lewis, the truck driver, has to make it three different ways. Kurt Busch, who drives the No. 2 Miller Lite Dodge, won't eat it if it has onions in it. Roy McCauley, the crew chief, likes his with mustard instead of mayo. And then Cindy makes it with onions and mayo for the rest of the crew."

What's your favorite NASCAR city to visit because of the restaurants, and why?

"There are a couple of good restaurants that we visit while on the road. In Dover, Del., the team always goes out to Sambo's, a great dockside seafood restaurant. In Loudon, N.H., we'll eat at the Naswa Resort a few times. The atmosphere is great. A lot of the guys on the No. 12 Alltel Dodge team like to go to In-N-Out Burger when we visit California."

In the kitchen and at the grill, do you follow recipes exactly or always improvise?

"Usually, I'll just fix it the way I want. I don't cook much in the kitchen. I usually grill whatever I cook, so it's easy just to make up my own dishes. If I decide I want BBQ sauce one time and then use a different kind of sauce the next time, that's what I'll cook.

During a race, do you ever get cravings for certain foods or drinks?

"I will sometimes need some extra water or Gatorade during a race, but I don't ask for food."

RYAN NEWMAN'S HONEY MUSTARD BBQ PORK CHOPS

1/3	cup honey
3	tablespoons orange juice
1	tablespoon apple cider vinegar
1	teaspoon white wine
1	teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2	teaspoons onion powder
1/4	teaspoon dried tarragon
3	tablespoons Dijon mustard
8	thin-cut pork chops
	Cooking oil

Place honey, orange juice, vinegar, wine, Worcestershire sauce, onion powder, tarragon and mustard in a large resealable plastic bag. Slash fatty edge of each chop in about three places without cutting into the meat. This will prevent the meat from curling during cooking. Place chops in the plastic bag, and marinate in the refrigerator for at least 2 hours. Preheat grill for high heat. Lightly oil grill grate. Place chops on grill, and discard marinade. Cook chops for 6 to 8 minutes, turning once, or to desired doneness.

BOOK REVIEW

Billionaires And Blondes

(NAPS)—What do billionaires really want? USA Today bestselling author Suzanne Enoch reveals what they really desire in her latest comedic suspense novel, "Billionaires Prefer Blondes" (Avon Books, $6.99).

In "Billionaires Prefer Blondes," readers are reacquainted with the hijinks of recovering thief Samantha Jellicoe, who is enjoying a career and a steamy romance with billionaire Richard Addison.

Samantha still has the urge to steal, but she's found other means to quench that particular fire (most of the time).

Things are going well until she finds out her father, Martin Jellicoe, is alive—she thought he had died in prison years before. To make matters worse, Samantha knows he's up to no good, and when Richard's new piece of art goes missing, she suspects her father is behind it.

With her sketchy past, it's easy to believe that the police will put the blame on her—and it won't be easy to prove her innocence. Between keeping her father's return a secret, searching for the missing painting and saving both their reputations, Samantha and Richard's relationship will be put to the test like never before.

Suzanne Enoch has been writing books since she learned to read. A full-time writer, she was born and raised in Southern California. "Billionaires Prefer Blondes" is available wherever books are sold.

6. The maximum term of the bonds of any series shall not exceed 32 years from the date of such series.

7. The bonds shall bear interest at rate or rates not to exceed the maximum rate permitted by law at the time the bonds are issued, payable semiannually or in such other manner as this Council shall determine, the actual rate or rates and times of payment of such interest to be determined by this Council at the time or times the bonds are issued.

8. The proposition of incurring the bonded indebtedness shall be submitted to the voters of the District and, pursuant to Section 53353.5 of the Act and the Resolution of Formation, the propositions on the levy of a special tax, the establishment of an appropriations limit, and whether to incur the bonded indebtedness shall be combined in a single ballot measure, substantially in the form attached hereto as EXHIBIT A.

9. A special consolidated election is hereby called at which the measure referenced in Section 8 shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the District. The election shall be held in accordance with and subject to the Act, all the terms of which shall, unless waived as herein provided, be applicable to the election.

10. Fewer than 12 persons have been registered to vote within the territory of the District for the 90 days preceding the close of the hearings on the special tax levy and the proposed bonded indebtedness. Accordingly, the vote shall be by the owners of the land within the District (the "Landowners"), and each such Landowner shall have one vote for each acre or portion thereof that such Landowner owns within the District.

This Council designates the City Clerk as the election official to conduct the election. The ballots for the special election shall be distributed by mail with return postage prepaid or by personal service to each Landowner (or authorized representative). The City Clerk shall canvass the returns and certify the results of the election to this Council.

If the City Clerk receives appropriate waivers of time limits and other requirements pertaining to the conduct of the election by all of the Landowners on or before September 22, 2006, the election shall be held on October 11, 2006, or on such earlier date on which the City Clerk shall have received such waivers and completed ballots from all Landowners. Otherwise, the election shall be held on December 21, 2006, being a date which is at least 90 days but not more than 180 days after the date this Resolution is adopted. The election shall be conducted by the City Clerk in the manner required by this Resolution, the Act and other applicable laws.

The hour on such date when the ballots are required to be received in the office of the City Clerk is 5:00 p.m. Pacific Time. If all qualified electors have voted prior to that time, the election shall be closed.

11. In accordance with Section 53327 of the Act, analysis and arguments as provided in Section 53327(a) of the Act are waived subject to the unanimous consent of the Landowners.

12. If two-thirds of the votes cast upon the proposition of incurring the bonded indebtedness are cast in favor of the indebtedness, this Council may thereafter, at the time or times it deems proper, incur the indebtedness so authorized.

13. The publication of this resolution as notice of the special bond election is waived provided the City Clerk shall receive unanimous consent to such waiver from the Landowners.

14. The City Clerk, City Attorney, and the other officers of the City are hereby authorized and directed, individually and collectively, to do any and all things, and to execute, deliver, and perform any and all agreements and documents, that they deem necessary or advisable in order to effectuate the purposes of this Resolution, including, without limitation, to prepare and submit for inclusion in the voter information materials an impartial analysis, and an argument in favor of passage of the ballot measure. All actions heretofore taken by the officers and agents of the City that are in conformity with the purposes and intent of this Resolution, and the Resolution of Formation, are hereby ratified, conformed and approved.
